Dear Mr. Rogalski,

It's okay if probabilities seem at first confusing.

McDonald's is such a powerful corporation that you might find it hard to believe.

My suggestion for the FBI/DOJ is to start with the crime of money laundering.

Even though I haven't finished this page, far from it, :

<https://www.ecthrwatch.org/mcdonalds-pattern-of-racketeering-activity/money-laundering-condoned-by-mcdonalds-corporation-first-example-france-2011/>

You can understand that Mr. Easterbrook and Ms. Santona, and Mr. Hicks, could only have understood that McDonald's France was committing fraud and therefore money laundering. (And remember the ties between Easterbrook and Hicks, and McDonald's France! ! !)

Now, the whole U.S. financial market is affected.

Remember what I said today about the 60 million daily consumers, and how tempting it is for McDonald's to simply commit some frauds here and there, once in a while to get a huge boost in the end, over the years.

Just like the fraudster Lance Armstrong.

McDonald's Corporation  $\approx$  Lance Armstrong

It makes it easier to understand, doesn't it? (Note that I used the  $\approx$  sign (approximately equal to) and not the = sign (the equal sign) (maybe it's not very clear depending on which font you use on your side).

I wish I could have an update. Please Mr. Rogalski 🙏

1. Who is the lead agent in charge of the racketeering enterprise investigation?
2. What is the FBI case number?
3. What's the name and contact information of the FBI Victim Specialist?

Can you at least tell me what's the name and contact information of the FBI Victim Specialist?

Today, this morning, I found a link between Ronald McDonald's House of Charity and the parent company of The Marketing Store which is the Havi group. I believe we can already start using the term "[REDACTED]" and/or "[REDACTED]" on top of "[REDACTED] enterprise" without even having to wait to see which investors in the criminal entity McDonald's Corporation will decide to maintain their investment in MCD stock. I believe it's illegal to finance organized crime knowingly, isn't it?

Best regards,

Vincent Le Corre
